This renovation has accomplished its two main aims, which were to preserve the significant heritage elements of the house and to reach a 6 Star rating. A connection between old and new has been achieved by continuing the deep eave, which stretched from the street end of the building to the back and now continues upwards to form the walls and roof of the first floor extension. The reconfigured layout now presents living areas to the north and sleeping areas to the south thus significantly improving the thermal performance of the home.
